Correspondence

President Bermingham announced that Highline Community College had received a plaque from the Commuter Challenge Program for a “Pacesetter Award.” The award was presented to the College in recognition for commitment and leadership toward commuter reduction efforts in the Puget Sound region during 2010.
Additionally, Dr. Bermingham spoke of the recent correspondence to the College regarding the Census Initiative. The College provided a temporary office location to the Census bureau to operate as a local station. He indicated that this was a unique activity on Highline’s campus and speaks to a number of diversity issues in that minorities have not historically participated in census polling procedures.

Tim McMannon was congratulated as a recipient of the Washington Community College Humanities Award. Tim has acted as a driving force in coordinating the history seminars on campus and has now also been recognized statewide for his many contributions to the field.

Lastly, the College was recognized over the summer by the Chronicle of Higher Education as a “great college to work for.” This recognition was provided through a survey participation process in which respondents answered questions in many different categories. Highline was one of three among its size category to be nationally recognized this year. Dr. Bermingham noted that he was most proud of scoring highly in the areas of innovation in teaching and learning through this survey.

Standing Reports

Associated Students of Highline Community College
Olga Afichuk reported.

- Olga Afichuk, President, Associated Students of Highline Community College presented a personal profile to the Board members. Olga explained that her family members were immigrants from the country of Moldavia, and her Mother had also attended Highline. She hopes to transfer to UW or to UCLA to pursue a career in dentistry.
- Olga remarked that she hoped to make sure that the Student Union was a safe and welcoming place for students to come and be able to voice their opinions. She felt that it was important to encourage discussion and to inspire new leaders to connect them with issues that relate to their passion.
- She reported on the training held in August at Wenatchee on Servant Leadership and spoke highly of the focus on learning new strategies with the theme of “think, pair, and share” led by Natasha Burrowes.
- There will be some restructuring of student clubs with “resource consultants” in the role of club leaders. Clubs will have designations of “registered” and “recognized” in which the registered clubs would be building community while recognized clubs would hold additional training prior to inviting the larger community.
- Olga noted the success of the welcoming activities of Thunderweek which included the ice cream social. This “meet and greet” activity with President Bermingham and Vice President Toni Castro was a great way to connect students with the administration, and worked well as an icebreaker for student leadership recruitment.
- Olga noted that student government leaders have been in discussion with the City of Des Moines for a possible partnership for student discounts.
- The Student Legislative Committee is looking for a new chair and the Legislative Academy will be held during November.

Washington Public Employees Association
A report from the WPEA will follow at the next meeting.
Highline College Education Association

- Ruth began her report by offering her congratulations to Olga as the student body president and said she takes great pride in Olga's accomplishments since she was one of her former instructors.
- Ruth acknowledged the in-depth discussion during the study session with regard to underfunding of community colleges. She said President Bermingham did an excellent job of outlining the tremendous impact this has on the faculty. She wished to thank the Board of Trustees for their support of the faculty and their sensitivity to these issues.
- A request was made by Ruth for input from the Board of Trustees for meetings of the State Efficiency Task Force. Ruth said she attends these meetings as the WEA representative and would be happy to hear the views of the Trustees. Mike Regeimbal requested an agenda in order to forward his thoughts.

Board Report: National Media Preferences Survey

Lisa Skari, Vice President for Institutional Advancement, presented a report on the National Media Preferences Survey. Highline Community College participated in this survey both in 2007 and in 2009. A former community college employee assisted in the process of this survey, so it is very specific to the needs of 2-year institutions. One drawback to the survey is that students within Basic Skills are not as well represented due to the way in which the surveys are conducted. Areas of focus include:

- Lifestyle choice such as preferences for coffee houses, malls, etc.
- Technology, i.e., computers in the home, use of smart phones, etc.
- Student perceptions: likes and dislikes at college

Some interesting statistics are:

- 92% are positive about using campus email accounts for college business
- Most survey respondents still prefer face to face instruction
- 75% of respondents register online
- 50% of respondents prefer to have the schedule available online

In requesting information regarding advertising and marketing of Highline, the top two areas where students indicated they had seen information about Highline were the newspaper, and on bus lines. Respondents also indicated they had seen information about Highline at movie theatres, and in the malls.

Based upon this information, Highline will try to improve websites and shift some resources away from direct mail. More information will be featured online such as the “How to Pay for College” brochure. Also, more advertising will be placed where students are seeing it – in movie theatres, etc. The College has already moved away from the print version of the Quarterly.

In general, some interesting trends were revealed about college students today. Of course, texting communication has increased. Close to half the students surveyed use the online enrollment process. 51% are using Facebook and 1/3 of those with Facebook accounts spend at least 3 hours per day using this program. In general students feel confident that they are receiving the information they need (86% responded positively). Future trends to investigate will be in expanding Facebook – for current students and Alumni, smart phone enhancements, and general enhancements through the web. The cost of participating in the survey was approximately $3500 which seems relatively inexpensive for this type of information. Lastly, it was interesting to see that Highline’s trends appear similar to those seen nationwide.

Area Reports

Institutional Advancement
Lisa Skari reported.

- Lisa explained that the “Make your Mark” campaign had tried to spotlight a number of different professions for the chosen alums to highlight within the advertising campaign. New this year, was the inclusion in Seventeen magazine which launched the “Make your Mark” campaign with one of our alumni.

Alice noted the special efforts of Rashad Norris who was very supportive in assisting the students produce their own DVD entitled, “Possibilities.”
• Alice underscored Toni’s comments on the success of Opening Week with the high energy events leading faculty and staff through week using a Passport theme. The CCI students also brought enthusiasm to the events and faculty and staff practiced repeating their greetings in the native languages of the students. - A number of capital projects have been active over the summer, including the completion of the North Road pathway. Building 9 is under renovation which is hoped to come to completion by the end of the year. The elevators in Building 25 should be fully operational very soon. The library also has gained a new circulation desk.
- Other projects include improvement to the doorway at the MaST center which will provide more protection from the elements.
- The Children’s Home Society has now signed a 5-year lease to operate the former child care center on campus.
- Larry recognized the efforts of Pelin Erel in coordinating the Rapid Ride transit operations for campus. 158 people have already signed up for the ORCA card in an overall effort to increase the numbers of people who intend to commute by bus to campus.
- The pay phone vendor has pulled several of the former pay phones on campus so now the remaining units will all operate as emergency call boxes.

Mr. Yoshida was recognized for his business activities and trade with Japan and spoke publicly in recognition of Highline Community College.
